

REG

REGARDFUL, adj. [regard and full.] Attentive; taking notice of.
 Bryan was so regardful of his charge, as he never disposed any matter, but first he acquainted the general. Hayward.
 Let a man be very tender and regardful of every pious motion made by the spirit of God to his heart. South.
REGARDFULLY, adv. [from regardful.]
 1. Attentively; heedfully.
 2. Respectfully.
 Is this th' Athenian minion, whom the world
 Voic'd to regardfully. Shakep. Timon of Athens.
REGARDLESS, adj. [from regard.] Heedless; negligent; inattentive.
 He likest is to fall into mischance,
 That is regardless of his governance.
Spenser.
Regardless of the bliss wherein he sat,
 Second to thee, offer'd himself to die
 For man's offence. Milton's Par. Lost, b. iii.
 We must learn to be deaf and regardless of other things,
 besides the present subject of our meditation. Watts.
REGARDLESSLY, adv. [from regardless.] Without heed.
REGARDLESSNESS, n. f. [from regardless.] Heedlessness; negligence; inattention.
REGENCY, n. f. [from regent.]
 1. Authority; government.
 As Christ took manhood, that by it he might be capable of death, wherunto he humbled himself; so because manhood is the proper subject of compassion and feeling pity, which maketh the scepter of Christ's regency even in the kingdom of heaven amiable. Hooker, b. v. f. 51.
 Men have knowledge and strength to fit them for action: women affection, for their better compliance; and herewith beauty to compensate their subjection, by giving them an equivalent regency over men. Grew.
 2. Vicarious government.
 This great minister, finding the regency shaken by the faction of so many great ones within, and awed by the terror of the Spanish greatness without, durst begin a war. Temple.
 3. The district governed by a viceroy.
 Regions they call'd, the mighty regencies
 Of seraphim. Milton.
 4. Those to whom vicarious regality is intrusted.
TO REGENERATE, v. a. [regenero, Lat.]
 1. To reproduce; to produce anew.
 Albeit the son of this earl of Desmond, who lost his head, were restored to the earldom; yet could not the king's grace regenerate obedience in that degenerate house, but it grew rather more wild. Davies on Ireland.
 Through all the soil a genial ferment spreads,
Regenerates the plants, and new adorns the meads. Blackmore.
 An alkali, poured to that which is mixed with an acid, raiseth an effervescence, at the cessation of which, the salts, of which the acid is composed, will be regenerated. Arbutnot.
 2. [Regenero, Fr.] To make to be born anew; to renew by change of carnal nature to a christian life.
 No sooner was a convert initiated, but by an easy figure he became a new man, and both acted and looked upon himself as one regenerated and born a second time into another state of existence. Addison on the Christian Religion.
REGENERATE, adj. [regeneratus, Lat.]
 1. Reproduced.
 Thou! the earthly author of my blood,
 Whose youthful spirit, in me regenerate,
 Doth with a twofold vigor lift me up
 To reach at victory. Shakep. Richard II.
 2. Born anew by grace to a christian life.
 For from the mercy-seat above,
 Preventing grace descending, had remov'd
 The stony from their hearts, and made new flesh
Regenerate grow instead. Milton.
 If you fulfil this resolution, though you fall sometimes by infirmity; nay, though you should fall into some greater act, even of deliberate sin, which you presently retract by confession and amendment, you are nevertheless in a regenerate estate, you live the life of a christian here, and shall inherit the reward that is promised to such in a glorious immortality hereafter. Wake's Preparation for Death.
REGENERATION, n. f. [regeneration, Fr.] New birth; birth by grace from carnal affections to a christian life.
 He saved us by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost. Tit. iii. 5.
REGENERATENESS, n. f. [from regenerate.] The state of being regenerate.
REGENT, adj. [regens, Fr. regens, Lat.]
REGENT, n. f. [regens, Fr. regens, Lat.]
 1. Governing; ruling.
 The operations of human life flow not from the corporeal moles, but from some other active regent principle that resides in the body, or governs it, which we call the soul. Hale.
 2. Exercising vicarious authority.
 He together calls the regent pow'rs
 Under him regent. Milton's Par. Lost, b. iii.

REG

REGENT, n. f.
 1. Governour; ruler.
 Now for once beguill'd
 Uriel, though regent of the sun, and held
 The sharpest-sighted spirit of all in heav'n. Milton.
 Neither of these are any impediment, because the regent thereof is of an infinite immensity. Hale.
 But let a heifer with gilt horns be led
 To Juno, regent of the marriage bed. Dryden.
 2. One invested with vicarious royalty.
 Lord regent, I do greet your excellence
 With letters of commission from the king. Shakep.
REGENTSHIP, n. f. [from regent.]
 1. Power of governing.
 2. Deputed authority.
 If York have ill demean'd himself in France,
 Then let him be deny'd the regentship. Shakep.
REGIMINATION, n. f. [re and germination.] The act of sprouting again.
REGIMINABLE, adj. Governable.
REGIMINE, n. f. [regimide, Lat.]
 1. Murderer of his king.
 I through the mazes of the bloody field,
 Hunted your sacred life; which that I mis'd
 Was the propitious error of my fate,
 Not of my soul; my soul's a regicide. Dryden.
 2. [Regicidium, Lat.] Murder of his king.
 Were it not for this amulet, how were it possible for any to think they may venture upon perjury, sacrilege, murder, regicide, without impeachment to their jainship. D. of Play.
 Did fate or we, when great Atrides dy'd,
 Urge the bold traitor to the regicide. Pope's Odyssey.
REGIMEN, n. f. [Latin.] That care in diet and living, that is suitable to every particular course of medicine.
 Yet should some neighbour feel a pain,
 Just in the parts where I complain,
 How many a message would he send?
 What hearty prayers, that I should mend?
 Enquire what regimen I kept. Swift.
REGIMENT, n. f. [regiment, old Fr.]
 1. Established government; polity. Not in use.
 We all make complaint of the iniquity of our times, not unjustly, for the days are evil; but compare them with those times wherein there was yet no manner of publick regiment established, and we have surely good cause to think, that God hath blessed us exceedingly. Hooker, b. i. f. 10.
 The corruption of our nature being presupposed, we may not deny, but that the law of nature doth now require of necessity some kind of regiment. Hooker, b. i. f. 10.
 2. Rule; authority. Not in use.
 The regiment of the soul over the body, is the regiment of the more active part over the passive. Hale.
 3. [Regiment, Fr.] A body of soldiers under one colonel.
 Th' adulterous Antony turns you off,
 And gives his potent regiment to a trull. Shakep.
 Higher to the plain we'll set forth,
 In best appointment, all our regiments. Shakep.
 The elder did whole regiments afford,
 The younger brought his conduct and his sword. Waller.
 The standing regiments, the fort, the town,
 All but this wicked sister are our own. Waller.
 Now thy aid
 Eugene, with regiments unequal press,
 Awaits. Philips.
REGIMENTAL, adj. [from regiment.] Belonging to a regiment; military.
REGION, n. f. [regio, Fr. regio, Lat.]
 1. Tract of land; country; tract of space.
 All the regions
 Do seemingly revolt; and, who resist,
 Are mock'd for valiant ignorance. Shakep.
 Her eyes in heav'n
 Would through the airy region stream so bright,
 That birds would sing, and think it were not night. Skat.
 The upper regions of the air perceive the collection of the matter of tempests before the air below. Bacon.
 They rag'd the goddess, and with fury fraught,
 The restless regions of the storms the fought. Dryden.
 2. Part of the body.
 The bow is bent and drawn, make from the shaft.
 —Let it fall rather, though the fork invade
 The region of my heart. Shakep. King Lear.
 3. Place; rank.
 The gentleman kept company with the wild prince and Poins: he is of too high a region; he knows too much. Shakep.
REGISTER, n. f. [registrare, Fr. registrum, Lat.] An account of any thing regularly kept.
 Joy may you have, and everlasting fame,
 Of late most hard achievement by you done,
 For which inrolled is your glorious name

REG

Sir John, as you have one eye upon my follies, as you hear them unfolded, turn another into the register of your own. Sha.
 This island, as appeareth by faithful registers of those times, had ships of great content. Bacon's New Atlantis.
 Of these experiments, our friend, pointing at the register of this dialogue, will perhaps give you a more particular account. Boyle.
 For a conspiracy against the emperor Claudius, it was ordered that Scribonianus's name and consulate should be effaced out of all publick registers and inscriptions. Addison.
 2. [Registrarius, law Lat.] The officer whose business is to write and keep the register.
TO REGISTER, v. a. [registrare, Fr. from the noun.]
 1. To record; to preserve from oblivion by authentick accounts. The Roman emperors registered their most remarkable buildings, as well as actions. Addison's Remarks on Italy.
 2. To enroll; to set down in a list.
 Such follow him, as shall be register'd;
 Part good, part bad: of bad the longer scrowl. Milton.
REGISTER, n. f. [from register.]
 1. The act of inscribing in the register.
 A little fee was to be paid for the registry. Graunt.
 2. The place where the register is kept.
 3. A series of facts recorded.
 I wonder why a registry has not been kept in the college of physicians of things invented. Temple.
REGLEMENT, n. f. [French.] Regulation. Not used.
 To speak of the reformation and reglement of usury, by the balance of commodities and discommodities thereof, two things are to be reconciled. Bacon's Essays.
REGLE, n. f. [reglette, from regle, Fr.] Ledge of wood exactly planed, by which printers separate their lines in pages widely printed.
REIGNANT, adj. [French.] Reigning; predominant; prevalent; having power.
 Princes are shy of their successors, and there may be reasonably supposed in queens regnant a little proportion of tenderness that way, more than in kings. Wotton.
 The law was regant, and confin'd his thought,
 Hell was not conquer'd, when the poet wrote. Waller.
 His guilt is clear, his proofs are pregnant,
 A traitor to the vices regnant. Swift's Miscellanies.
TO REGORGE, v. a. [re and gergo.]
 1. To vomit up; to throw back.
 It was scoldingly said, he had eaten the king's goose, and did then regorge the feathers. Hayward.
 2. To swallow eagerly.
 Drunk with wine,
 And fat regorg'd of bulls and goats. Milton's Agonistes.
 3. [Regergo, Fr.] To swallow back.
 As tides at highest mark regergo the flood,
 So fate, that could no more improve their joy,
 Took a malicious pleasure to destroy. Dryden.
TO REGRATT, v. a. [regrasser, Fr. re and grat.] To graft again.
 Oft regraffing the same fons, may make fruit greater. Bac.
TO REGRANT, v. a. [re and grant.] To grant back.
 He, by letters-patents, incorporated them by the name of the dean and chapter of Trinity-church in Norwich, and regranted their lands to them. Ayliffe's Parergon.
TO REGRATE, v. a.
 1. To offend; to shock.
 The cloathing of the tortoise and viper rather *regrate*th, than please the eye. Derham's Physico-Theology.
 2. [Regrat, Fr.] To engross; to forestall.
 Neither should they buy any corn, unless it were to make malt thereof; for by such engrossing and regrating, the dearth, that commonly reigneth in England, hath been caused. Spens.
REGRAFTER, n. f. [regratier, Fr. from regrate.] Foretaller; engrosser.
TO REGREET, v. a. [re and greet.] To refalute; to greet a second time.
 Hereford, on pain of death,
 Till twice five summers have enrich'd our fields,
 Shall not regreet our fair dominions,
 But lead the stranger paths of banishment. Shakep.
REGREET, n. f. [from the verb.] Return or exchange of salutation. Not in use.
 And shall these hands, so newly join'd in love,
 Unyoke this seizure, and this kind regreet? Shakep. King John.
REGRESS, n. f. [regress, Fr. regressus, Latin.] Passage back; power of passing back.
 'Tis their natural place which they always tend to; and from which there is no progress nor regress. Burnet.
TO REGRESS, v. n. [regressus, Lat.] To go back; to return; to pass back to the former state or place.
 All being forced unto fluent confidences, naturally regress unto their former solidities. Brown.
REGRESSION, n. f. [regressus, Lat.] The act of returning or going back.
 To desire there were no God, were plainly to unwill their own being, which must needs be annihilated in the subtraction of that essence, which substantially supporteth them, and retrains from regression into nothing. Brown.

REGRET, n. f. [regret, Fr. regret, Italian. Prior has used it in the plural; but, I believe, without authority.]
 1. Vexation at something past; bitterness of reflection.
 I never bare any touch of conscience with greater regret. King Charles.
 A passionate regret at sin, a grief and sadness at its memory, enters us into God's roll of mourners. Decay of Piety.
 Though sin offers itself in never so pleasing a dress, yet the remorse and inward regrets of the soul, upon the commission of it, infinitely overbalance those faint gratifications it affords the senses. South's Sermons.
 2. Grief; sorrow.
 Never any prince expressed a more lively regret for the loss of a servant, than his majesty did for this great man; in all offices of grace towards his servants, and in a wonderful solicitous care for the payment of his debts. Clarendon.
 That freedom, which all sorrows claim,
 She does for thy content resign;
 Her piety itself would blame,
 If her regrets should waken thine. Prior.
 3. Dislike; aversion. Not proper.
 Is it a virtue to have some ineffective regrets to damnation, and such a virtue too, as shall serve to balance all our vices. Decay of Piety.
TO REGRET, v. a. [regretter, Fr. from the noun.]
 1. To repent; to grieve at.
 I shall not regret the trouble my experiments cost me, if they be found serviceable to the purposes of respiration. Boyle.
 Calmly he look'd on either life, and here
 Saw nothing to regret, or there to fear;
 From nature's temperate feast rose satisfy'd,
 Thank'd heav'n that he had liv'd, and that he dy'd. Pope.
 2. To be uneasy at. Not proper.
 Those, the impiety of whose lives makes them regret a deity, and secretly with there were none, will greedily listen to atheistical notions. Glanville's Serps.
REGUERDON, n. f. [re and guerdon.] Reward; recompense.
 Stoop, and set your knee against my foot;
 And in reguerdon of that duty done,
 I gird thee with the valiant sword of York. Shakep.
TO REGUERDON, v. a. [from the noun.] To reward. The verb and noun are both obsolete.
 Long since we were reliev'd of your truth,
 Your faithful service and your toil in war;
 Yet never have you tasted your reward,
 Or been reguerdon'd with so much as thanks. Shakep.
REGULAR, adj. [regular, Fr. regularis, Lat.]
 1. Agreeable to rule; consistent with the mode prescribed.
 The common cant of critics is, that though the lines are good, it is not a regular piece. Guardian.
 The ways of heav'n are dark and intricate,
 Puzzled in mazes, and perplex'd with errors;
 Our understanding traces them in vain,
 Lost and bewild'rd in the fruitless search;
 Nor sees with how much art the windings run,
 Nor where the regular confusion ends. Addison.
 So when we view some well-proportion'd dome,
 No monstrous height or breadth or length appear;
 The whole at once is bold and regular. Pope.
 2. Governed by strict regulations.
 So just thy skill, to regular my rage. Pope.
 3. In geometry, regular body is a solid, whose surface is composed of regular and equal figures, and whose solid angles are all equal, and of which there are five sorts, viz. 1. A pyramid comprehended under four equal and equilateral triangles. 2. A cube, whose surface is composed of six equal squares. 3. That which is bounded by eight equal and equilateral triangles. 4. That which is contained under twelve equal and equilateral triangles. 5. A body consisting of twenty equal and equilateral triangles: and mathematicians demonstrate, that there can be no more regular bodies than these five. Muschenbr.
 There is no universal reason, not confined to human fancy, that a figure, called regular, which hath equal sides and angles, is more beautiful than any irregular one. Bentley.
 4. Instituted or initiated according to established forms or discipline: as, a regular doctor; regular troops.
REGULAR, n. f. [regulier, Fr.]
 In the Romish church, all persons are said to be regular; that do profess and follow a certain rule of life, in Latin styled regula; and do likewise observe the three approved vows of poverty, chastity and obedience. Ayliffe's Parergon.
REGULARITY, n. f. [regularité, Fr. from regular.]
 1. Agreeableness to rule.
 2. Method; certain order.
 Regularity is certain, where it is not so apparent, as in all fluids; for regularity is a similitude continued. Grew.
 He was a mighty lover of regularity and order; and managed all his affairs with the utmost exactness. Asterbury.
